Forecast For Yorkshire & the Humber
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Wednesday 27 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Turning wet overnight with some hill snow.

This Evening and Tonight:
Starting cloudy and misty, with a slow thaw of any lying snow. Rain spreading from the southwest by midnight, and this will fall as snow across the Pennines, with significant accumulations possible. Minimum temperature 0 deg C (32 deg F).

Thursday:
The rain and snow affecting all areas. Snow becoming increasingly confined to highest ground. Turning drier later but remaining cold. More rain overnight. Maximum temperature 6 deg C (43 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Some rain and snow for Friday, turning showery. Saturday drier, bright and breezy. Feeling cold. Sunday similar with bright or sunny spells. Rain and snow might arrive later.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.